- 4.1 The Chair welcomed Carol Hayden of the National Development Team for Inclusion (NDTI) to present an update on the development of a Health and Social Care Strategic Framework for Scottish Borders. Ms Hayden was in attendance to gather feedback and comments on the draft framework which set out how health and social care services would be delivered over the next three years. The aims of the NDTI's engagement activity were summarised which were to update attendees on work in the development of the strategic framework, to present an outline of the framework and seek further comments and to seek further involvement in the planning, design and monitoring of the framework. The framework had been informed by the NDTI engaging and listening to communities to understand their expressed needs which the NDTI summarised in their We Have Listened report; understanding the public health needs of the population which was presented in the NDTI Needs of our Communities report; reviewing performance against national health and wellbeing outcomes; and considering current and future challenges. Attendees were encouraged to read the reports produced by the NDTI. The key challenges found by the NDTI were summarised with particular emphasis on the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic. Drop-in consultation events highlighted workforce pressures and the importance of attracting and retaining healthcare professionals. Ms Hayden presented the high level mission, vision and aims of the framework. These were:
- Mission: "to help the people of the Scottish Borders to live their lives to the full, by delivering seamless services that place their needs at the heart of everything that we do";
  - Vision: "That all people in the Scottish Borders will be able to live their lives to the full"
  - Aims: "To improve and continue to support the health and wellbeing of the citizens of Scottish Borders".

- 4.2 Ms Hayden presented highlights of what the draft framework sought to achieve including that 85% of adults that were supported at home agree they were supported to live independently which was at 73.1%. Ms Hayden presented the strategic issues of the framework and the objectives, which detailed what the Health and Social Care Partnership would prioritise to deliver its vision. Ms Hayden explained to attendees that the NDTI were seeking views on the framework, and if anything was missing; how communities could be involved in developing the framework and actions; and on monitoring the implementation and impact of the framework at community, local and Borders-wide levels.

5. CAMPAIGN FOR A SCOTTISH BORDERS NATIONAL PARK

- 5.1 There had been circulated copies of a slide deck from the Campaign for a Scottish Borders National Park. The Chair welcomed Malcolm Dickson to the meeting to present on the Campaign for a Scottish Borders National Park. The campaign had been running for approximately 7 years, instigated by a supporters that felt that having a national park could regenerate the economy of the Scottish Borders. In 2000, the National Parks (Scotland) Act was passed by the Scottish Parliament and two national parks had been created since; the Cairngorms National Park, and the Loch Lomond and the Trossachs National Park. The campaign believed that the natural beauty and cultural heritage of the Borders lent itself to having a national park designated to the area. The campaign identified that the Scottish Borders was within 90 minutes' drive for approximately 5.5 million people in Scotland and the North of England. Further reasons given for support of the campaign included that the Borders had a struggling economy and an aging population and that national parks encouraged young professional and working families to live or visit. The campaign identified falling reducing tourism trends. Mr Dickson advised that as national parks crossed multiple local authority areas, this may arise concerns over planning. However, a Borders national park would be contained within the Scottish Borders Council boundary and would allow for straightforward planning considerations. The campaign had sought to address concerns around pressure on services, responsible tourists and house prices. Mr Dickson further advised that farmers within national park boundaries received more subsidies per acre than those outside a national park. Mr Dickson explained that it was an important step for the campaign to receive political endorsement from Scottish Borders Council and advised that the Campaign for a Scottish Borders National Park may be seen to have a weaker case without support of the Council. Mr Dickson advised that the process of developing a report for advancing the endorsement of a Borders national park may be too slow and consideration should be given to speeding the process up.

- 5.2 Attendees discussed the presentation and Mr Dickson answered questions on the campaign. Mr Dickson advised that windfarms that already existed before national park designation wouldn't impact the application however future windfarm applications may be affected within a national park area. It was expected that the procedure of designation of a new national park would continue in light of the change of First Minister. Governance of national park authorities were outlined in the 2000 National Parks (Scotland) Act. More than half of the park authority would be local people with other members drawn from Scottish Government experts. Scottish Borders Council elected members would be amongst the local members of the governing body. Most national park funding was drawn from an annual funding grant from the Scottish Government, and other funding would be received from park fundraising such as endowments. Mr Dickson advised that he could circulate further information about elections to the park authority through SBC officers. It was raised that there should be assurances that a national park authority's elections and business should be as transparent as possible.
